Army and Navy News Navy Engineer Coming. The English Lieutenant of the navy department, who was assigned to duty to relieve Captain Parks, ordered to Honolulu, may not arrive until the latter part of this month. At present he is in Washington, where Captain Parks is also on temporary duty. Both officers are going over the Pearl Harbor break-down with reference to the proposed extension of length to 290 feet. As soon as the length is decided upon, Engineer Lowman will leave Washington for Honolulu. Leluhua Plan Held Up. From present indications the proposed Leluhua plan for building a new harbor, including Schofield Barracks, may be held up for the remainder of this year. The war department has arrived at no conclusion so far, and there is a growing belief among local army folk that the war department will not reach the plans for about a year. The $200,000 appropriation to start the work, it is said, will not lapse at the end of June, being appropriated for the special fiscal year. To this has been added another $200,000. The question of water, which for a time seemed to be an insurmountable obstacle, has been settled. The war department has gone over the Waihiwai Water Company's rights and the rights have been subjected to scrutiny by the legal advisers of the war department, so that the army folk will not have to worry over the source of water supply when the time comes to make use of it. Mrs. Wrightson Hurt. Letters recently received from Lieutenant Wrightson, Twenty-six Infantry, formerly stationed at Fort Shafter, and his wife, formerly Miss Harlaway, tell of an accident to Mrs. Wrightson at Manila. The Wrightsons were returning from a drive and when about to alight one of the horses became frightened. Lieutenant Wrightson jumped to the bridle of the frightened horse, but it fell just as Mrs. Wrightson was alighting. Some ligaments in one leg were strained and injured, and at last moments she was laid up, although the injuries are not permanent. Traitor on Way Here. MANILA, March 29. — Joseph Sava, the soldier whom the two Japanese recently approached for the purpose of securing photographs and plans of the American fortifications in the Philippines and who assisted in trapping them, has been in the army for eleven years. He enlisted first in the Second Louisiana Infantry. He then served three years each in the Fourth and Thirtieth Cavalry, when he was transferred to the engineering corps. Sava was born in Chicago and his parents live in Waterbury, Conn. He is thirty-three years old. He had been detailed on the photographic work, and consequently was in a position to furnish the desired photographs. Sava's name continued to the limits of Fort Santiago, but will be sent home on the next transport. The identity of the Japanese is uncertain. They are known generally as Siganami and Kawala. It is asserted that the former is the son of a colonel in the Japanese army. This, however, can not be verified. Both men are linguists and have been in the islands for about a year. It is believed there was a third Japanese, who, however, failed to enter the house on Sunday when the others were captured. It is thought he was to bring the bribe money. The Japanese watched the house all day Sunday before entering it, but the American officers anticipated them by taking up a position in the house on Saturday and remaining concealed for thirty hours. The prisoners are being held in the custody of Colonel Irons. The Japanese consul has taken no action. How Giant Anchors are Forged. The anchor ship of the United States Navy is located in the navy yard at Charlestown, Massachusetts. In this building all the anchors for use in our navy are forged. They vary in size from 400 to 17,500 pounds. The first step in the process of making the anchors is the reduction of the scrap from the chain factory—the imperfect links, the shanks, etc.—into billets of sufficient size to make the various anchor parts. These rough masses of iron are held and worked on huge porter bars which are about twice four feet. The furnaces burn soft coal, and when a greater degree of heat is desired gas is used. The steam batteries, of which there are about thirty in the works, furnish power. The degree of accuracy with which the operation is handled is in a striking way. It is said that some of these men are doing a great twenty-ton hammer down on a 200-ton globe and the crystal will not be broken. Each anchor has its standard size and weight for a small number of larger anchors. The weights and measurements for the various sizes have been computed. The work of making a 17,500-pound anchor takes about a month. Twenty-seven working days. The globe iron, which is about 250 tons, and the men work from three to five in five dollars a day, from which data it is quite easy to understand why the cost of one of these large anchors is about $100,000.

INTERESTING TIMEPIECE. The society formed by the Friends of Old Paris is delighted that the old clock of the Palais de Justice has been restored. This old clock has apparently been in use for over 500 years. The friends of Old Paris urge the preservation of old landmarks with historical associations. The tower known as the Tour d'Horloge was completed about 1312 and for some fifty years the hours were told by striking a bell. It was in 1375 that Charles V. proposed that a big clock should be made to replace the bell, and failing to find a Frenchman capable of undertaking the task he employed one Heinrich von Vite, a German.

SALE OF THE BIBLE. Statistics with respect to the sale of the Bible are always interesting and are generally remarkable. Few statistics, however, speak more for themselves than those respecting the immediate sale which followed the issue of the revised version. This version was issued to the public on May 17, 1881, and before midday the Charendon Press, from whose offices it came, had sold a million copies to the trade. One member of the trade, with a shop in the City of London, alone disposed of 15,000 copies before nightfall.

TROPHIES ALL FOR SMITHSONIAN WASHINGTON, March 31.—Colonel Roosevelt's African lion trophies are intended for the Smithsonian Institution above, for exhibition in the national museum, and will not be distributed among the museums of the country. Officials of the institution have just made such an announcement to correct an impression which is prevalent throughout the country that the specimens sent home by the expedition of which the former President was the head would be for general distribution. Colonel Roosevelt had with a few specimens for the American Museum of Natural History in New York. It is true, but these were in the nature of a personal gift to Mr. Akeley, who is collecting for that institution. He also sent an elephant to the museum of the University of California in recognition of the courtesy of Miss Alexander, who waived a contract with Edmund Heller, the naturalist, so that he could accompany Colonel Roosevelt on the Smithsonian African scientific expedition. Aside from these gifts and such others as Colonel Roosevelt might wish to make as personal favors, the trophies of the hunt will all go to the Smithsonian Institution for the national museum.
